FAMILY HISTORY RESEARCH. 29.08.2017

Aim of the research was to find information about the ancestors of Hilda Tamm (née Lepik) within the time limit allocated for the research.

Based on the information from the client we started with looking for information from the register of parishioners of Põltsamaa congregation. Later we also used the sources of Kodavere and Paide Jaani congregations since the families originated from Vastseliina, Kesküla and Karuse manor districts.

It is possible to continue the research with finding more biographical information about the persons in the family tree, also to find more ancestors in most lines and descendants in sidelines (if it is not specified otherwise).

The parish registers of Põltsamaa congregation start in 1695 and the registers of parishioners start in 1834. The parish registers of Kodavere congregation start in 1690 and the registers of parishioners start in 1756. The parish registers of Paide Jaani congregation start in 1749 and the registers of parishioners start in 1778.

NB! Inseparable part of the report is the text of the principles of the report. We would like to turn your attention to the most important ones among those principles:

- Not all children are always listed. If all are listed then we have made a respective remark about that. Unverified data about closer relatives of the client is not included in the report unless requested.
- Place of registration (marked with nr, meaning registration in some farm or manorial district, being a member of some commune) is not always actual place of residence, but legal place of registration.
- Almost always the data can be complemented, exact birth and death dates and all children etc can be found out, if it is not specified otherwise.
- Finding vital information from the years 1949-1992 in usually requires knowing at least approximate year and place when and where something happened. Data from this period is usually collected orally.

Addition: Principles of the report 00202.

PRINCIPLES OF OUR REPORT 00202

- Number in the ancestral report shows the location of the person in the ancestral tree and in the text. Number/letter in the descendants' report is just an ordering number.
- The life years in the ancestral chart might be approximate. More information can be found from the main text about the person.
- Data provided by the client and that has not been verified by the records we used, but which has to be included to make the report understandable (connecting people, death information), is in {braces}.
- Only those persons have been included in the report who are necessary to be included for the research assignment. As usually compact information about one family/person can be obtained until 1930s, later information is occasional. I.e. data provided by the client about his/her closer relatives, is not presented in the report.
- Unusual or incorrect name spellings (for example Alferd) and other suspicious facts (for example two children born in less than a year) have been underlined.
- The date presented in italic is according to the old calendar style. New calendar date is presented only if it appears in the used records. To calculate a new calendar date 12 days has to be added to a 19th century date and 13 days to a 20th century date.
- Each year that appears in the source without a date (except in cases mentioned below) or that have been calculated from the person's age have 'ca' (circa) before the year. The actual year might differ from the year in the text (5-7 year differences are not rare in case of 18th century persons). Exact date can usually be found with additional research. If the parish register has no dates (sometimes until 1833), it has been remarked specially.
- Italic text is a direct citation from the original source. Text in "quotation marks" is paraphrased or translated text.
- Years should be read as follows:
 - -1805- The fact is valid at least for the year 1805; most probably it applies also to years before and after that, but the sources used did not prove it.
 - 1805- The fact is valid at least for the year 1805; most probably it applies also to years after that, but the sources used did not prove it.
 - -1805 The fact is valid at least for the year 1805; most probably it applies also to years before that, but the sources used did not prove it.
 - -1795-, -1811- The fact is valid at least for the years 1795 and 1811; most probably it applies also to years between and possibly to earlier and later years, but the sources used did not prove it.
 - -1895-1911- The fact is valid at least for each year between 1895 and 1911; most probably it applies also to years before and after, but the sources used did not prove it.

□ 1811/1816 The event took place somewhere between 1811 and 1816.

□ <1754 The event took place prior to 1754 (i.e. until 1753, but not in 1754);

□ >1857 The event took place after 1857 (i.e. in a year since 1858, not yet in 1857).

- First name – A normalized (contemporary, according to the pronunciation) variation is presented. All variations (including the one that matches the normalized spelling) appearing in the used sources are presented in brackets. The spelling as it appears in the baptism entry, is marked with *, from marriage entry with oo and death entry with +. If the list of name variations contains a name with such mark that means the information about the respective event (birth, marriage or death) comes from the primary source for that fact (parish register or vital registration). In other cases the date comes from secondary source and might not be quite accurate.

- Surname – The surname is presented with its last known or most common spelling. All variations of the surname in the used sources are presented at the end of the report. The surname is not presented if we have not found (looked for) evidence about the person being alive after 1826 (in the Livonian province) or 1835 (in the Estonian province) when giving of surnames was finished. If it is not noted separately the person received the last name given in the report by 1826 (in the Livonian province) or by 1835 (in the Estonian province) and before that he/she was without the surname (see supplementary name).

- Supplementary name (presented /between slashes/) is the name the person carried before surnames were given. It usually contains the name of the farm and the person's first name and sometimes who the person was to the farmer (son, daughter etc). All supplementary names have been normalized. Variations of the farm name in the sources can be found at the end of the report and variations of the first name in the sources can be found after the person's first name.

- Birth – If the place of baptism is not mentioned in the source (usually prior to 1834) the congregation is marked as the place of baptism. The names of the godparents are presented in a normalized spelling if possible, so their name spellings should be used with reservations. If the godparent's name is in italic it is presented exactly as in the original source.

- Marriage – Conditional (<) marriage year has been derived from the oldest used document, where the marriage has been listed. Actual marriage might have occurred decades earlier.

- Biography – Facts concerning the place of living and status of an individual derived from censuses is marked with sr: (soul revision). Since 1816 in Estonian province and since 1819 in Livonian province the individual did not necessarily inhabit the farm he/she was listed in. Thus the fact “-1858- sr: in Matsi farm“ does not show that the person lived in Matsi farm, but that farm was the place a person was registered in. It can be verified with additional research, but no results can be guaranteed if the individual did not marry or have children in between or if these events took place out of his/her home parish. Data about the person’s place of residence without the remark ‘sr’ comes from the sources that usually show the actual place of living. Being a member of a commune does not indicate that the person lived in that commune, being a member of a congregation usually does.

The status of women in the farm or their living place is not presented as it is usually directly linked with that of the husband and can easily be derived from his biography. If the woman was likely the head of the farm, it is noted separately. Biographical information about a woman is presented before and after the marriage and in cases when the spouses might have lived separately (usually in the 20th century).

The list of children may be incomplete and depends on the used sources. We have marked if we most likely have found all the children or all childred alive at some point ect. If such remark is missing there might have been more children besides the ones in the report.

Confession is marked only if a person was not Lutheran. As confession was sometimes changed we have tried to date when a person was from another confession than Lutheran.

- Death – The time of death can be presented as a period of time. In case of married women the last certain (or likely) year is presented when they were alive according to the records we used. Finding the date of death might take some time, depending on the region and confession. Finding the date of death from 1940-1992 might be difficult if the person moved. If the reason of death can be interpreted in several ways, it is also presented in the original language. Burial place is usually not marked in the parish registers until the 20th century (sometimes until 1926).

- Notes – If finding further data concerning the lineage of the individual is likely to be complicated (usually women, stepchildren, farmhands etc) it has been noted. No notes have been made if it is likely possible to investigate the lineage further as in most cases it is possible.

- Information in square brackets is not directly proven by the sources used, but is likely to be true (requires additional research).

- References – The reference is as follows: Archives.fonds.inventory.file:picture number in Saaga, number of page or sheet. If the reference contains a Saaga picture number, the respective page can be viewed online at (www.ra.ee/saaga) by copying the reference (for example EAA.1241.1.23:32) to the reference field in Saaga’s main page. Free registration is required. If the reference is without a number after the colon, the source was not present in Saaga at the time when the report was compiled.

- Variations of surnames – All variations of the surname that appeared in different sources have been presented for all individuals who carried that name.

- Place names – The name of the farm is presented according to contemporary way of spelling, but it might not be the spelling that is used today. All spellings (including the one that has the same spelling than the contemporary way) of the name of the farm that appeared in the sources we used (including maps and place name dictionaries) are in brackets. Spellings that at the moment cannot surely be connected with the same farm, but most likely is the same farm or its descendant (for example we have found a similarly sounding name from a map or present-day cadastral database) has been presented between \\. Names of farms that appear in the names of godparents are not listed. The administrative division has been presented as it existed when the place name was found from the source. It is not aimed at giving a historical overview of the place’s history, but only to help to identify the place.

- Used sources – The sources are presented by archives/repositories. Archival reference, heading and dates are presented about the sources. If the dates of the source are in italic then we did not find any information for the research from this file.
